The Original Luxury Minivan Adds Fresh Ideas for 2008

- Chrysler brand originated the luxury minivan, the Chrysler Town & Country
- Brand offers upscale amenities for 18 years

August 5, 2007, Auburn Hills, Mich. - As the originator of the luxury minivan segment in 1989, Chrysler has offered families a minivan with upscale amenities for 18 years. The 2008 Chrysler Town & Country continues the tradition of elegant style, unmatched comfort and versatility, attention to detail and the safety and security features that families expect.

"We listen to how people use their minivans, and the challenge to ourselves is to imagine the possibilities we can offer the 21st century family," said David Rooney, Director – Chrysler Marketing. "It really is exciting to push the envelope and set new standards for entertainment, technology and safety features with the 2008 Chrysler Town & Country minivan."

The minivan segment is a vibrant part of the new vehicle market, averaging 1.1 million units sold since 1993. Roughly one of every 15 new vehicles sold in the U.S. is a minivan and that is expected to stay stable or grow slightly in the near future.

The Chrysler Town & Country has the heritage of being the original luxury minivan. Introduced in 1989, as a 1990 model, the Chrysler Town & Country broke new ground with luxurious accommodations and features typically not found on a minivan at that time.

The 2008 Chrysler Town & Country offers contemporary, tailored styling, abundant standard safety features, unmatched versatility and purposeful technology in an elegant package that doesn't sacrifice value or performance. The new Chrysler Town & Country is engineered beautifully and carries on the heritage of the original luxury minivan.

"The 2008 Chrysler Town & Country minivan lets customers share the good life with family and friends," said Rooney. "Beautifully engineered with luxury amenities, elegant style and unmatched versatility, it's the best choice for minivan customers who don't want to compromise style or their active lifestyle."

The primary 2008 Chrysler Town & Country target customer in the United States is a married couple between the ages of 35 and 45 with two or more children older than six years of age at home. The median household income is $80,000, and 65 percent are college graduates.

The secondary customers are "empty nesters" between the ages of 55 and 65 who do not have children living at home. The median household income for this target customer is $60,000 per year. Approximately 40 percent are college graduates.
