Ram Truck Brand Teams With Foo Fighters to Launch New Advertising Campaign to Shine a “Spotlight” on Everyday Rock Stars

- “Rock Star” will kick off the “Spotlight” campaign across Ram’s social media channels, featuring Dave Grohl of Foo Fighters in his Ram 1500
- The campaign launches with two spots, “ Rock Star” and “ Overtime,” both narrated by Grohl; third spot, “Best Part,” to debut later this month
- “Spotlight” reinforces the shared values of the Ram Truck brand and Foo Fighters, shining a light on parents, family caregivers, coaches, teachers and all those who remind us they are built to serve, even in the most challenging times
- The spots are set to “Making A Fire,” the opening track of the band’s massive 10th album “Medicine at Midnight,” and will run across television, digital and Ram’s official YouTube, Facebook, Instagram and Twitter channels
- The campaign coincides with two new projects directed by Grohl:
  - “What Drives Us,” a feature-film documentary described by Grohl as his “love letter to every musician that has ever jumped in an old van with their friends and left it all behind for the simple reward of playing music”
  - “From Cradle to Stage,” an original unscripted television series inspired by his mother Virginia Hanlon Grohl and her critically acclaimed book of the same name

May 6, 2021, Auburn Hills, Mich. - Beginning today, the Ram Truck brand and Foo Fighters join forces to pay homage to everyday heroes with the launch of a new multimedia campaign, “Spotlight,” which includes three new videos spanning television, digital and Ram Truck brand social media channels.

The campaign will kick off just before Mother’s Day and coincides with the release of “From Cradle to Stage,” a new unscripted series directed by Grohl and inspired by his mother Virginia Hanlon Grohl and her critically acclaimed book. This follows closely on the release of “What Drives Us,” a documentary Grohl directed as “a love letter to every musician that has ever jumped in an old van with their friends and left it all behind for the simple reward of playing music.”

“Foo Fighters’ story with the Ram Truck brand started 25 years ago when they piled into a Ram van and headed out on the road in search of a dream,” said Olivier Francois, Global Chief Marketing Officer, Stellantis. “Their ability to pursue those dreams were enabled by the ones who have continued to support the band throughout what has turned out to be a one-of-a-kind journey. Now, we come full circle with the Foo Fighters in a collaboration that recognizes the challenges and celebrates the triumphs of our everyday heroes, especially during this last year, and further reinforces our ‘Built to Serve’ commitment to Ram customers everywhere.”

Stretching back to the #RamBandVan initiative launched in 2018 and decades earlier to the ‘90s and the band’s original Ram van featured in “What Drives Us,” the partnership between the Ram Truck brand and Foo Fighters was born out of a shared passion: A desire to enable hardworking musicians to get out and tour, knowing the struggles, financial and otherwise, that come with the grassroots touring lifestyle. The #RamBandVan program has and will continue to support determined musicians as they get back to doing what they love.

Soundtracked by Foo Fighters’ anthemic “Making A Fire,” the campaign kicks off with an extended 60-second version of "Rock Star" featuring Dave Grohl. As a tribute to the mentors and leaders who are Ram truck owners, the video showcases everyday people helping kids with their struggles, while Grohl is seen driving his Ram 1500 and listing all the ways it takes to overcome obstacles on the path to rock stardom before humbly stating, "bringing out the very best of them, takes the very best of us."

Two additional 30-second campaign spots, "Overtime" and "Best Part," will run across television. A 30-second version of "Rock Star" will also run across television.

The Ram Truck brand's "Spotlight" campaign was created in collaboration with Austin, Texas-based agency GSD&M with support from G7 Entertainment Marketing, who brokered the Foo Fighters partnership.
